DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

3. Claim 2 recites the limitation "each of said sheet having an elastic property" in line 3. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 4-6 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Razavi et al. (US 2004/0096622).

Razavi discloses a container for dispensing liquid contained therein through an opening wherein said opening is closed with a composite sheet comprising a sheet having elastic property and another sheet having a slip property wherein the sheets are stacked, wherein the elastic sheet is made from silicone rubber, wherein the slip sheet is made from polytetrafluoroethylene, Teflon (paragraphs [0010], [0016] and [0018]).

Art Unit: 1782

Claim 6 which recites a dynamic and static friction is inherent in Razavi since teflon is disclosed as the slip layer.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Razavi et al. (US 2004/0096622).

Razavi fails to specifically disclose claim 7 which recites a hardness and reflection coefficient. However, claim 7 is necessarily present in Razavi because Razavi discloses silicone rubber which is the same or substantially similar to applicant's recited material for the elastic layer in instant claim 4. Furthermore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to have provided claim 7 in Razavi in order to improve the self sealing properties of Razavi.

8. Claims 2-3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Razavi et al. (US 2004/0096622) in view of Boosalis et al. (US 4362698).

Razavi fails to disclose slits in both the elastic layer and slip layer that are substantially aligned.

Boosalis discloses slits in both the elastic layer and slip layer that are substantially aligned (column 3, lines 21-58, column 4, lines 43-64, column 7, lines 31-62, column 8, lines 45-68) in closures for fluid sample cups for the purpose of preventing cross contamination of samples (column 1, lines 31-49).

Therefore it would have been obvious at the time applicant's invention was made to have provided slits in both the elastic layer and slip layer that are substantially aligned in Razavi in order to prevent cross contamination of samples as taught or suggested by Boosalis.
